DAYTON HONORS WRIGHTS

CELEBRATION WILL MARK ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST AIRPLANE

Delegates Taken To Fairfield As Week Is Opened

DAYTON, O., Dec. 10.—The state, nation and delegates from foreign countries joined the city of Dayton today in honoring Orville Wright, and his late brother, Wilbur, who made the first successful airplane flight at Kitty Hawk, N. C., twenty-five years ago.

Today's festivities marked the beginning of a week of celebration in observance of the flight and later this week, Orville will be the guest of honor at an international celebration in Washington. A pilgrimage to Kitty Hawk will conclude the observance.

First delegates to the celebration arrived yesterday when six giant tri-motored planes carrying representatives and diplomats from foreign countries, swooped down out of the skies from Chicago. Hundreds of aviation enthusiasts and admirers of the Wright brothers arrived by train and scores by automobile and plane.

A busy program was arranged for today. The delegates were taken to Fairfield and Wright field, after which they visited Huffman Dam which leads to the site proposed for a $1,000,000 memorial to the Wright brothers.

After the drive, the visitors attended a luncheon at Wright field and later inspected the field laboratories, a treasure house for fliers and inventors.

The public program will start at 7:30 p. m. in the form of a testimonial to Orville Wright, from his friends and neighbors. Men of note will deliver addresses, with Mayor Allen C. McDonald extending greetings to the aviators and foreign officials.

A hand-made scroll containing expressions of Dayton citizens for the Wright brothers' achievements in science and invention, will be presented to Wright.

This afternoon the delegates will visit Wilbur Wright's grave and lay a wreath on his tomb.

Capital After Welcome

VALPARAISO, Chile, Dec. 10.—President-elect Herbert Hoover arrived here today on his goodwill tour of Latin America.

Chile is the third South American country Mr. Hoover has visited.

The Maryland anchored early today, the party left the ship at 8 a. m. After an official welcome, they immediately entrained for Santiago, the Chilean capital.

The commission of the government, which greeted the American statesman consisted of eight persons, including Commandant Carlos Cerda Prada and Captain (1st Lieut.) Neef, who have been assigned to Mr. Hoover as aides during his visit in Chile.

The governor of the province headed the welcoming commission.

In leaving the Maryland, the Hoover party started the second stage of its trip. From Valparaiso to Buenos Aires, the trip will be made by train. From Buenos Aires, the party will take an Argentine warship to Montevideo where the U. S. S. Utah will be taken for Rio de Janeiro.

The special train for Santiago left at 8:15 a. m. After Mayor Lautaro Rosas of Valparaiso had presented Mrs. Hoover with a set of old colonial silverware in the name of the city, The Maryland exchanged the national salute of twenty-one guns with the shore battery and then fired a salute of farewell to Mr. Hoover.

YOUNG EDITOR IS STILL MISSING

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 10.—Authorities today resumed their search for Merrill Valentine, 21, editor of the Kingston Tribune who disappeared Thursday after leaving his wife a note in which he threatened to drown himself.

A bus driver here said a man answering Valentine's description boarded a bus for Cincinnati Thursday.

Valentine's 18-year-old wife, whom he married only a few weeks ago, assigned financial difficulties as the cause of his disappearance.

STATE EMPLOYEES TO SEEK HIGHER PAY

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 10.—The state employees' beneficial association plans to make a drive on the legislature for increased pay, according to an announcement given out by its officers today.

The association has $281, raised by a benefit card party, with which to pay a lobbyist to look after the interests of the committee, the announcement says. More money will be donated.

A promise has been made by some legislators to support appropriations for higher pay for state employees, it is claimed.

The association, in its announcement, points out its membership of 5,000 "who can influence a number of votes." So "it behooves candidates to pay some attention to association members' requests."

Election of officers will take place Jan. 4. The nominating committee has submitted the following names: John McNamara, president; Leonora Prentiss, vice-president; Charles Manney, secretary; and George D. Richardson, treasurer.

SOUTH AMERICAN WAR TALK MAY MAR HOOVER'S GOODWILL TOUR

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 10.—An amnesty for all prisoners was declared by the government today in connection with the Bolivian-Paraguayan crisis after the border incident in the Chaco region last week. All political exiles will be permitted to return to the country.

Two days of vivid demonstrations have left the population of La Paz with an intense antipathy for all things relating to Paraguay.

All institutions and organizations in the city were represented in yesterday's demonstrations. Many prominent women, headed by Senora Hernandez Siles, wife of the president of the republic, marched in the parade and carried flags.

Youth and age alike participated in the maelstrom of angry citizens. There were cries of "this soil is free!" and "better to die than to live as slaves."

The Bolivian foreign office has refused the Paraguayan offer to present the dispute to an investigating commission.

COLLEGE FRESHMAN HELD AFTER SWEETHEART IS FOUND SLAIN

FOYIDAN, Mich., Dec. 10.—The romance of a college freshman and a pretty village school teacher was retraced by police today for a possible clue in the brutal murder of Miss Flossie Carter, 29-year old Sheridan grade teacher.

Miss Carter's body, beaten and stripped of clothing, was found yesterday in her small coupe on a lonely side road near here.

Lee Bracey, a freshman at Olivet College, Olivet, Mich., with whom Miss Carter was said to have had an engagement Friday night was arrested at Olivet and returned here for questioning.

An examination by physicians revealed Miss Carter had been attacked. Physicians said they were certain the girl had been dead since Friday night.

Bracey at first denied he had been here Friday night but after his father contradicted him admitted he had returned from Olivet Friday night and stayed at his home until Saturday when he returned to school.

He admitted calling Miss Carter at her home but said he had not seen her during his stay. He said he and the teacher had kept company for two years.

Bracey viewed his sweetheart's body in the morgue last night. He looked on unmoved and with utmost indifference said, "I know nothing about this."

A congressional committee authorized appointment of a congressional committee to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first airplane flight in North Carolina.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Solution of all international disputes by diplomatic negotiations rather than by recourse to arms, was urged by President Coolidge today in an address opening the Pan American conference on arbitration and conciliation here.

The president lauded the part taken by the nations of the western hemisphere toward promotion of peace and said representation of twenty governments at this conference was motivated by a desire for peace and justice.

He received evidences of good will in the western hemisphere. The people are without animosities, he said; they have no historic and inbred hatreds; armaments indicative of hostile intent are lacking. Any rivalries that exist, Mr. Coolidge said, center on the "beneficial strife of the market place."

The president cited the leading role taken by South American countries in effecting treaties making "both conciliation and arbitration integral parts of their national policy." America, he said, has not been lagging in furthering similar doctrines.

Venezuela, Ecuador, the Dominican Republic, Brazil and Uruguay were mentioned by Mr. Coolidge as countries in the western hemisphere that have made the principle of arbitration a basic tenet of their political constitutions.

"In the domestic investigation, mediation, conciliation and arbitration, a long series of bilateral and multilateral treaties represent the milestones which mark the way to future progress," the president said.

At another point he said: "The great value of the plan for arbitration lies in the fact that it furnished both knowledge and assurance that differences will be adjusted and also adjust them. This has a very large influence on the public temper. Nations do not explode all at once without any previous warning and begin to attack each other. Such action comes as the culmination of a long series of irritating incidents. If these are adjusted as they arise, there is no fuel to feed the explosive elements when some difference of larger importance may occur."

In the wake of modern thought, the president said, governments are seeking nothing derogatory to their dignity in submitting differences to an impartial tribunal.

BRINDISI, Italy, Dec. 10.—The Prince of Wales began a spectacular race across Europe today to the bedside of his father, King George.

Arriving from Port Said, Egypt, on the cruiser Enterprise, the prince transferred to a waiting special train which started at 12:30 p. m. for Boulogne, France.

The transfer of the prince ashore was completed quickly and the run across Italy, Switzerland and France began.

The three nations have united to speed the prince on his way. Tracks will be cleared and engines obliged to stop only to change engines. It will run through the St. Gothard Tunnel under the Alps and across the north of France to Boulogne. There a British destroyer will take the prince across the Channel to England. He should be in London about noon on Wednesday.

The principal item of the agenda of the present session is the creation of the league's new permanent central optum body, but the recent refusal of the United States to participate in the creation of this body has raised the question of whether the council has the authority to act alone.

Statesmen here were quoted as regarding the league council sessions far less important than private conversations between foreign ministers, and they were convinced these conversations would be pointless if Chamberlain could not be present.

UNDERWORLD BEING TRACKED IN CANTON FOR PISTOL KILLER

Ability With Pistol Indicates Woman Experienced

CANTON, O., Dec. 10.—Canton's "jungle"—the forbidding stretch of grim buildings and dark alleys where two years ago the assassination of Don R. Mellett, Canton editor, was plotted—was invaded by police today in search of the slim girl who killed Vernard Fearn, young Waco, O., coal dealer, last Thursday night.

Fearn was called to the door of his home and as he crossed the threshold, five steel-jacketed bullets, fired with unerring aim, riddled his body. The gun-girl, described by Fearn's wife as a slender and attractive young blonde, calmly walked to an intersection and hailed a bus en route to Canton.

The killer's extraordinary ability with firearms and her coolly calculating methods, have convinced Sheriff Edward Gibson and County Prosecutor Henry Harter that she came from the "jungle," where proficiency with firearms is an asset to existence.

"It is logical," Harter said today, "that such a woman would come from the jungle. She may be hiding there or may be under cover in a similar section elsewhere. She mentioned Loran to one of the bus drivers with whom she chatted."

Thus far police have been unable to discover a motive for the killing and Harter is convinced that there was a "hidden chapter" in Fearn's life. He believes that Fearn has some contact with the girl.

Fearn was shot with a .32 calibre automatic. The gun-girl, Harter said, handled the weapon with a skill which could be born only by long practice.

"When we find this woman," he said, "she will prove to be a hard one."

Harter said he would question Mrs. Fearn and her 9-year old daughter again today in an effort to reveal something in Fearn's past life, and a list of Fearn's customers will be examined.

Fearn's business yielded around $6000 a year. He was prominent socially and he and Mrs. Fearn always attended Waco's civic and social functions together.

Others agreed privately that a bill would pass this week carrying an amendment allocating water rights along Lower Colorado River Valley states and perhaps modifying hydro-electric features of the legislation.

But while representatives of Arizona, Nevada and California carried on negotiations for a water compromise and expressed confidence of early action on the bill, the senate debate continued without open indications of immediate termination.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona leader of the previous filibusters on the bill, who started his speech last Saturday, was prepared apparently to go almost indefinitely.

INVESTIGATING WEEK FACING CONGRESS; COMMITTEES BUSY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Congress set out upon an investigating week today, delving its magic probing wand into everything from insular affairs to southern patronage.

The senate wrestled with the Boulder Dam problem on a basis that indicated a satisfactory agreement to vote on this seven-year-old issue might be reached within a few days. The house prepared to pass the Greek and Austrian debt settlements, ratifying funding arrangements which the treasury department made with these two nations.

While these matters were occupying the attention on the floor, the committees were digging up new problems to solve.

The week's program of committees in the senate included: Monday—Joint meeting of insular affairs on pending legislation; judiciary committee on delay of labor injunctive restriction bill.

Tuesday—Education and labor investigating proposed legislation to correct unemployment situation, Secretary of State Kellogg to appear before foreign relations committee investigating his anti-war treaty.

Wednesday—Secretary of Interior West before the public lands committee on challenges made to his nomination because of his previous affiliation as lawyer for Samuel Insull, Illinois public utilities magnate; Brookhart committee meets to continue six months investigation of southern patrilage distribution, with reference to postmasters appointed.

Thursday—Six more prominent witnesses called in West nomination investigation; Indian affairs committee meets on resolutions to investigate administration of reservations.

Friday—Interstate commerce committee reopens investigation of Watson bill providing restricted government management of bituminous coal distribution.

Saturday—Investigative committee meets to investigate feasibility of moving senate chamber in expected special session; present chamber to be remodeled meantime.

Leaders called it a busy week which will be made busier still by other arrangements which are to be made as the days pass.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Strained relations between Bolivia and Paraguay cast their shadow today over the Pan American conference on arbitration and conciliation as delegates of twenty republics assembled for the opening session.

Diplomatic relations between the two countries, had been broken off over the week end. Bolivia on Saturday ordered the Paraguayan charge to leave La Paz in the wake of a border clash in the disputed Ichazo territory, and Paraguay followed Sunday by ordering the Bolivian charge to quit Paraguay immediately.

A Paraguayan legation statement said Paraguay's action had been forced on Bolivia's course, while Dr. Diaz De Medina, Bolivian minister said his country's action was caused by what he termed an unprovoked attack by Paraguayan troops, on a Bolivian fort on the Paraguayan-Bolivian frontier.

PASSENGERS TAKEN FROM GROUND SHIP ALONG IRISH COAST

Rescued Include 29 Vestris Disaster Survivors

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Dec. 10.—The White Star liner Celtic, carrying 255 passengers from New York to Liverpool, was aground today off the Roches Point, near here. The passengers included twenty-nine survivors of the steamship Vestris which sank last month off the Virginia Capes.

The passengers have been landed by tenders at Queenstown. The sea was calm and there was no danger.

There are 412 members of the crew still to be taken off. First efforts to re-float the vessel have been unsuccessful.

The tide was ebbing at noon and another attempt will be made to re-float the ship tonight when the water rises.

The Celtic is a ship of 21,000 tons, built in Belfast, Ireland, in 1901 by Holland and Wolff, Ltd. It is 680 feet long. The port of register is Liverpool, England. The ship is one of the most popular passenger vessels in trans-Atlantic travel.

LIVERPOOL, England, Dec. 10.—Passengers and crew aboard the steamship Celtic on the trip from New York totalling 667, the head office of the White Star Line said today.

The passengers include eighty-eight cabin class; forty-eight tourist class; and 119 third class. There are 412 in the crew.

The disembarkation of those aboard would be "perfectly safe" it was said.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The underwriters association received a message today from the master of the Celtic saying that he was arranging for the transfer of the passengers to local tenders. The captain said he believed the transfer could be made without risk of human life.

The grounding of the Celtic is believed to have been caused by the storms and gales in the English Channel and Bay of Biscay which have been delaying shipping the last few days.

INDICTED ELECTION
OFFICIALS MISSING

CLEVELAND, Dec. 10.—Ten election officials indicted in Attorney General Edward C. Turner's investigation of alleged corruption and fraud in the August primary, were to be arraigned today before Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon.

While the court was preparing to try the first cases, deputy sheriffs were redoubting their efforts to apprehend the rest of the thirty-one indicted.

Members of the sheriff's force expressed the belief that many of those wanted had somehow obtained warning of the forthcoming indictments and purposely evaded the deputies with their capes.

Search for a notorious gangster, well known at police headquarters, who was indicted for alleged fraud in one of the precincts was without result.

TREASURY SURPLUS TO BE $60,000,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A treasury surplus of $60,000,000 for the fiscal year 1929, despite increased appropriations for governmental activities, was predicted today by Chairman Anthony of the house appropriations committee.

Anthony said his committee found it difficult to cut appropriations below the budget estimate but bills had been pared so as to save about $50,000,000 on the budget figures.

"Expenses are certain to mount in the future," he said. "Take the war department for example, since the war it has been living off the 'fat' left over from the World War but now new supplies and new armament are needed as the war surpluses are being exhausted.

"The flood control item is certain to rise each year and the navy must be taken care of. I am confident congress will give the navy sufficient funds to start the cruiser program."

Farm Notes

PRUNE ROSES

Climbing roses should be pruned at about this time every year, says Victor H. Ries, extension floriculturist at the Ohio State University, and the pruning should consist of removing all the wood except the new shoots which sprang from the base of the vine during the past summer.

"This means cutting out about half of the bushes which are regularly pruned this way," says Ries. "For old climbing roses which have never been properly pruned, it may mean removal of three-fourths of all the branches.

"Although this may seem rather severe treatment, it will tend to increase the production of new wood and will result in bigger and better flowers, borne in greater profusion than ever before. It will also help to get rid of scale and pests which have infested the old wood.

"At the same time it might be well to cultivate the ground around the rose bushes, and give them a good mulch of leaves or barnyard manure. It might do as well to apply, in the spring, several pounds of complete chemical fertilizer with a formula of 6-8-5, 5-13-4, or 4-12-4."

FIND GAS SUPPLY

CONNEAUT, O., Dec. 10.—Considerable excitement prevailed here today following "shooting" of a gas well the capacity of which was estimated at 1,000,000 cubic feet. The well is on the J. H. C. W. MURPHY HEADS LUMBER MEN'S TOUR

C. W. Murphy of the Greene County Lumber Co., Xenia, Ohio has been appointed county chairman of the Post-Convention Cruise Committee by the Ohio Association of Retail Lumber Dealers.

It is the practice of the Ohio Association of Retail Lumber Dealers to arrange an excursion for Lumber Dealers, their families and friends, following its annual meeting. Special trains or steamships are used and a congenial party with mutual interests are drawn together for care-free days of travel.

This year's trip will be a twenty-two day cruise to the West Indies on board the steamer "Lapland" of the Red Star Line. The party will leave Columbus for New York, via special train at the close of the annual Convention Banquet, and will sail at midnight January 31. The first port of call is Nassau in the Bahama Islands, thence to Kingston, Jamaica, and on to Colon in the Panama Canal Zone. From Colon the party will proceed by special train and government launch through the canal to Balboa and Panama City on the Pacific end. Upon rejoining the "Lapland," they proceed to Vera Cruz, Mexico, and take special train for a three day trip to Mexico City, passing through some of the most beautiful scenery in the world. The last port is Havana, Cuba, the "Paris of the West," and then return to New York arriving February 21.

Mr. Murphy will be in charge of the delegation from this county, and will attend to all the arrangements for their convenience.

TREASURY SURPLUS TO BE $60,000,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A treasury surplus of $60,000,000 for the fiscal year 1930, despite increased appropriations for governmental activities, was predicted today by Chairman Anthony of the house appropriations committee.

Anthony said his committee found it difficult to cut appropriations below the budget estimate but bills had been pared so as to save about $50,000,000 on the budget figures.

"Expenses are certain to mount in the future," he said. "Take the war department for example, since the war it has been living off the 'fat' left over from the World War but now new supplies and new armament are needed as the war surpluses are being exhausted.

"The flood control item is certain to rise each year and the navy must be taken care of. I am confident congress will give the navy sufficient funds to start the cruiser program."

DOWNTOWN CHRISTMAS TREES ADD YULETIDE APPEARANCE

Xenia's downtown business section took on a festive Yuletide appearance Saturday night, when Christmas trees placed in front of business houses were lighted for the first time.

Many stores in the city have completed their Christmas decorations and these blended with the brilliantly lighted trees to carry out the holiday appearance.

The plan of having decorated and lighted Christmas trees to line the business section of the city during the holidays was adopted a few years ago and has been enthusiastically followed by business houses.

Several merchants are complaining that a number of the colored bulbs were stolen off the trees over the week end and in other cases bulbs were broken.

Police Chief M. E. Graham declared that similar trouble was reported last year and that the offenders, believed to be boys, will be dealt with severely.

It was also reported that about 4 o'clock Monday morning someone switched on the tree lights. Switches were changed Monday to prevent a repetition of this.

ARRESTS EXPECTED SOON IN REPORTED HI-JACKING CASE

Possibility that arrests may be made soon in connection with the reported hold-up of James Masterpois, Springfield, who was robbed of $800 in cash, a diamond ring valued at about $1,000 and his automobile on the Clifton-Cedarville Pike, near Yellow Springs, last Thursday night, was intimated by Sheriff Omer Tate Monday.

The hold-up was characterized by Sheriff Tate as having been made by hi-jackers since Masterpois is said to have admitted that he was on his way into the country to obtain fifteen cases of liquor when the attack took place.

Masterpois reported that as he passed through Yellow Springs he picked up a youth, an accomplice of the bandits who asked him for a ride. As the auto neared the spot where the hold-up occurred, the boy asked the driver to slow down.

He complied with the request and as the speed of the car slackened, two men are said to have leaped onto the running board of the sedan, covering Masterpois with revolvers. It is said that one man struck Masterpois over the head with a revolver and after forcing the driver from the machine, drove away in the car. Sheriff Tate later discovered the auto about a mile from the scene of the robbery, where it had been abandoned.

Masterpois is said to have charged that one of his assailants lives in Yellow Springs and that his identity is known to him. Sheriff Tate refused to go into details as to the nature of the pending arrests.

We have received a parcel of photographs from J. J. Downing, of Xenia, O., which are peculiarly excellent, having a roundness and softness of shadow and light far above the average, which is due to the fact that Mr. Downing took a course in art and worked in portrait painting prior to taking up photography and therefore was avoided the habit of running in ruts.

ARRESTS EXPECTED SOON IN REPORTED HI-JACKING CASE

Possibility that arrests may be made soon in connection with the reported hold-up of James Masterpois, Springfield, who was robbed of $800 in cash, a diamond ring valued at about $1,000 and his automobile on the Clifton-Cedarville Pike, near Yellow Springs, last Thursday night, was intimated by Sheriff Omer Tate Monday.

The hold-up was characterized by Sheriff Tate as having been made by hi-jackers since Masterpois is said to have admitted that he was on his way into the country to obtain fifteen cases of liquor when the attack took place.

Masterpois reported that as he passed through Yellow Springs he picked up a youth, an accomplice of the bandits, who asked him for a ride. As the auto neared the spot where the hold-up occurred, the boy asked the driver to slow down.

He complied with the request and as the speed of the car slackened, two men are said to have leaped onto the running board of the sedan, covering Masterpois with revolvers. It is said that one man struck Masterpois over the head with a revolver and after forcing the driver from the machine, drove away in the car. Sheriff Tate later discovered the auto about a mile from the scene of the robbery, where it had been abandoned.

Masterpois is said to have claimed that one of his assailants lives in Yellow Springs and that his identity is known to him. Sheriff Tate refused to go into details as to the nature of the pending arrests.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

HIS FOURFOLD SUFFERING—But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. —Isa. 53:5.

PROTECTING SUCKERS

Calvin Coolidge, in a recent address, made the following pertinent statement: "The ultimate reformers of business must be the business men themselves."

Since its inception in 1914, the Better Business Bureau movement has proved Mr. Coolidge's point. At that time business was a hit and miss proposition. There was much violation of the Marquis of Queensbury rules and the advertiser who was the best Ananias usually got the business.

Business foresaw that such methods would eventually destroy public confidence. Accordingly a Better Business Bureau movement took form to "raise the standards of advertising and increase the public's confidence in advertising." Thus, business organized its own housecleaning organization to cut out misleading advertising, unfair tactics, unfair contracts, competitive knocking, commercial bribery and financial frauds. Forty-four Bureaus thrive in the United States, with a national office in New York City.

Like all others, this bureau operates in two fields, merchandise and financial. In the financial field the Bureau is educating the public to investigate before investing their savings, and unbiased facts on proposed investments are given to the public without cost. It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of dollars are saved this trade territory every year through the Bureau's efforts in exposing frauds. It co-operates with the Blue Sky departments of the various states in investigation of concerns seeking to sell stock in dubious propositions, and with the postoffice inspectors office in tracing down mail frauds.

Just now a determined fight is being waged against the alleged "tip" sheets which are being mailed out by so-called market forecasters urging the purchase of speculative securities. This type of faker uses the telephone and telegraph system extensively in defrauding the public and repeated warnings have been issued against this scheme over the radio, and through newspapers who wish to protect their readers.

Many banks serve as "listening posts" for the Better Business Bureau.

Go to them when the stock salesman calls. For all prospective investors will do well to heed the slogan of the Better Business Bureau—"Before you invest, investigate."

RIOT OF COLOR FOR KITCHENS

Drab kitchens are relics of the past. The modern food foundry in the average home is enlivened with color. Gaily painted utensils fill the drawers, line the cupboards and rest on the stove. The walls, chairs and tables are not without a certain cheerfulness and vivacity added to them by a coat of lacquer or enamel.

A writer in a current magazine tells how to make the work place of the housewife more attractive. "In the first place," says the writer, "refinish the wooden handles of all your cooking tools. All dressed up thus, they make a most inviting family."

"A gaily painted knife box, a salt box enameled in white with bright decorations, the transformation of the bread board, all add to the cheerfulness of the kitchen."

But the writer neglects to tell how to decorate the furnace room so that scooping ashes will be one of the great joys of life.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

MURDEROUS DRIVING

Friends or foes say Massachusetts is wet. It is said that thousands of Bay State folks think wet, hope wet, and vote wet. But this same state is very rough on tipsy auto drivers. A drunken driver is swept into jail pretty quickly. A motorist found driving his car "under the influence" loses his license and he has to wait a year before he can even apply for another. Whatever we may think of prohibition the use of liquor has some very practical aspects.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

A speaker of note at a Parent-Teacher convention makes the charge that the public schools are better adapted to girls than to boys. She finds it much harder to keep the nose of the boy on the grindstone of education. Perhaps this charge is of questionable merit. The school system today is doubtless better than ever before in the history of the republic. Boys and girls are just as smart or smarter. It is so much a matter of individual handling, or earnest application, of home habits, that it is hardly just to charge the school system with not being well adapted to boys.

The speaker, Mrs. Cornelia James Cannon, by the way, concludes with a significant word about the problem we all face. She says:

"It is a new changed world that our children are coming into, and I am afraid that we are not very good leaders because we ourselves have the greatest difficulty in sensing their new environment. Our temptation is great to think too highly and too often of the 'good old days.' But we are here to fight sensibility in ourselves, in civilization and, I suspect, in the school system."

BRIDGES TO HISTORY

Virginia opens three bridges which have wondrous historical as well as modern, practical significance. The famous Virginia peninsula, where the traveler finds the site of ancient Jamestown, settled in 1607, and Williamsburg, the colonial capital, and Yorktown where Cornwallis surrendered, is connected with Norfolk and Portsmouth. Those who love to hunt for history along old roads and new will be delighted.

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

of a

New Yorker

By WALTER WINCHELL

NEW YORK.—It appears that they have to come to New York to get in the big money after all. Nigger Nate Raymond, the dapper gambler, who, it is said, sat in the same game with Rothstein in which $550,000 changed hands, runs a "game" in Los Angeles. It is located in the sepioid belt, and the racket is "craps" or "numbered aggravators." The limit bet is only a dollar, but dimes that "he does" or "doesn't" are (like contributions to a column) cheerfully accepted.

WHERE THEY MAKE LAWS

It happened in Washington, D. C., the other night. A pair of New York news photographers were there and, after making inquiries, learned that they could get some laughing soup by calling Franklin 4000 and mentioning a certain name. "But be sure," warned the informant, "that you don't call Main 4000, for that's the police station." One of the hocus focus lads phoned, and when a voice answered he said: "I am a friend of Soandso's. Can you send over a bottle of gin?" "Hell!" growled the voice, "this is Main 4000. You want Franklin 4,000!"

THE PARK RAWGUE!

Frank Garlasco of the Club Lido forwards the one about the reporter who went to interview a phamous philim star who had just been divorced from an even more famous husband. "Why did I leave him?" she echoed. "Say, did you ever live with a genius?" "Sure," retorted the potential columnist, "I live alone."

LAUDER, BUT NOT FUNNIER

Sir Harry Lauder was playing golf on a course near his home with a friend, who asked him if he could explain the significance of a pile of rough stones near the eighteenth hole. "It's a vera simple," calmly replied Sir Harry. "It's a caddie's monument. I once lost a wee ba' thereabouts, an' he died o' starvation lookin' for it."

PLAYING "HARD-TO-GET"

When the new musical hit "Rainbow" was polishing off the rough edges in Baltimore recently it was witnessed by Henry L. Mencken, marking the famous musical production the famous commentator had seen in fifteen years. Naturally the press agent of the show hoped to get a quote out of the "name," so he asked his opinion.

"It has the greatest music," was the evasive answer, "since 'Onward, Christian Soldiers.'"

AND THE ADORABLE MISS CORNELL

Not a few of the critics have been hypnotized into believing that the plays which star the spellbinding Katherine Cornell were potential hits. This enraptured spectator left off witnessing and enjoying every moment of her playacting in Gilbert Miller's production of "The Age of Innocence." But with all of the adroit actress' spell, the new piece's charm, its breath of old New York and its frequently interesting story, it will, one fears, not be rewarded.

It is done in the Gilbert Miller manner, no less. It is a dramatization of Edith Wharton's novel of the same title by Margaret Ayer Barnes, and it is staged by Guthrie McClintic. It is difficult to imagine any one arranging a better dramatization than that embroiled by the adapter, yet it lags, and the third episode is unfolded (there are five of them) the annals sets in.

HARRY KENDALL THAW

Those of us who were accustomed to seeing him almost every yawning in the various whoopee places missed Harry K. Thaw for the last few months. Since his return from Europe, where they handled him rudely, Thaw has been hermiting it up at 160 Riverside Drive, going out to play on Broadway only once or twice every week at most instead of every night. His bodyguard, Morgan Pendleton, hasn't been serving him for an age now, having "gone straight" to peddle insurance for the N. Y. Life, and his successor is Sydney Werner of Baltimore.

We inquired after Thaw the other night, and learned that he is snubbing Broadway, not because he cannot stand the pace, or that he is aging, or that he is "petering" out, but because, strangely enough, he has acquired some common sense. "They thought they could sell me five bottles of their champagne when I always knew that I never order more than three," he grumbled. It appears some of the haughty waiter who told the shadier how many bottles Harry ordered. They are almost as negligent as steamship owners, who send ships to South America with incompetent crews and leaky lifeboats, it seems.

A LENIENT CREDITOR

The local church was making a drive for funds, and two colored sisters were hearing down hard on Uncle Rastus. "I can't give nothing," exclaimed the old negro. "I owes nearly everybody in dis here town already."

"But," said one of the collectors, "don't you think you owes de Lord something, too?" "I does, sister, indeed," said the old man, "but he ain't pushin' me like my other creditors is."

KING FOR A DAY

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—The god Mars could hardly have surprised Washington more, by suggesting armament limitation, than Chairman Fred A. Britten of the naval committee of the house of representatives succeeded in doing, with his proposed conference to that end, urged by him in a recent call to Premier Baldwin of England.

Fred Britten always has been regarded as the most uncompromising "big navy man" on Capitol Hill.

"More warships!" has been his battlecry for a decade.

Ordinarily the state department claims the exclusive right to handle all international correspondence relative to governmental questions.

Indeed, there is a law against any interference with it. Maybe Representative Britten's message to Premier Baldwin was not quite official enough to constitute a violation of this statute, but it was pretty close to it.

However, departmental functionaries are not so much perturbed as to the legality of the Illinois congressman's action as they wonder over the fact that he was the one to take it. They would as soon have expected Tex Rickard to launch a campaign to prohibit prize fighting.

Britten arrived in Washington a year ago with a cruiser-building program in his pocket that took all the peace organizations' breath away.

I talked with him at the time. He fairly effervesced "preparation," not to say pugnacity. Fred is the fighting man all over. He looks like it and he expresses it—a big, hard-as-nails athlete—a champion amateur boxer—bold and determined.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

When we come to the "bath requisites" we find a variety of suggestions, each one seemingly more suitable than the last. Personally, I think it shows discrimination and rare good taste to make your minor gift selections among the wide array of salts, powders, tablets, talcs, etc.

Here, as with perfume, it's a good idea to classify your gift list and have your common-sense working overtime while you choose fragrances. Before we go into that, however, let me tell you of the varieties of gifts which may be listed as bath requisites. First, there are salts, and every woman loves these dainty luxuries, so they may be classed 100 per cent safe—as gifts. Salts come either in crystal form, plain or effervescent, or in little tablets. I've used both, and I can choose a favorite, so I suppose it's largely a matter of personal taste. Every known and some totally unknown fragrance may be had in bath salts. Violet and lavender are widely popular, but chypre and rose and combination scents are also very lovely.

Sachets, I think, may be listed here, and you can either make the little satin pillows with bits of satin ribbon, or the fat, soft handkerchief box sachets that are simple or elaborate, according to your skill and patience. These are gifts always acceptable and always in good taste.

Bath talcum is as nice as it can be in a bright, decorated tin and with the accompanying down puff. This, incidentally, is a nice, inexpensive gift for your daughter to give to her school friends—or to receive from you, for that matter. Choose any or all these gifts—and rest assured you have chosen well and wisely.

For a long time I have observed the tendency of average men to take farmers, for example, in business to do things backward and prices consequently low. If wheat has been plentiful most farmers think wheat prices will be equally low next year and don't plant much wheat. The result is the next year and higher prices for wheat. The average farmer thinks: "I'll let the other fellow take the warning, but I'll plant wheat just the same. Everybody else will follow the warning, wheat will be scarce, prices high and I'll have plenty of wheat to sell." He forgets that every other farmer will reason just as he does.

EXPECTANT MOTHER'S HEALTH WILL AFFECT BABE'S STAMINA

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

Marning the Unborn

"I was very much interested in your recent article on 'No Truth in the Bugaboo of Marking the Unborn.' Will you please discuss the effects on the unborn child of the mother's thoughts and disposition during pregnancy?"

"MRS. B."

The only effects on the unborn babe of the mother's thoughts and disposition, as well as of her fears and frights, will be their effect on the mother's health and thus the babe's stamina. If the woman tries, while she is with child, to be even-tempered, to improve her mind and disposition, and will continue those habits, in this way she helps to mould the character of her baby. Of course, there are talents and traits that are inherited, but the possibilities of these are present in the germ plasma, and are not added to by any efforts of the mother after conception.

MRS. W.—Yes, you should begin to wean your baby about the ninth month. Omit one breast feeding a week until she is totally off the breast.

If, at the third or fourth month, you have begun to give her one artificial feeding of cow's milk, water and sugar—a good plan—by this time you have worked up to nearly whole milk, and you can give the baby at this feeding the same strength that you have been giving her in the one bottle. If you haven't been giving her this one artificial feeding, you will have to begin with a little weaker formula. By the ninth month she could stand about one-half milk and one-half water, without any sugar. Each day you can use a tablespoon more of milk and one less of the water until she is getting whole milk. When the baby gets whole milk there is no need of sweetening it. She should be having, also, by this time, cereals and pure vegetables and fruits. If you possibly do so, take her to a children's specialist or a clinic to get specific directions as to diet.

We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeding of children.

MRS. W.—The abscesses I have every six months need special attention. There is an infection in the cysts which always trouble you until the membrane is removed entirely. The operation is not a difficult one, and can be done under local anesthesia. That infection is probably the cause of your other troubles.

"Will you please tell us why some growing children get wheezy after a wild picnic feast of hot dogs, ice cream, sweets and drinks?"

MRS. J.

Certain children and adults are sensitive to certain foods, and these foods will give different manifestations, among them the hives, eczema, asthma. The average child can have little specks of over-eating, apparently without much ill effect, but these sensitized ones will always suffer.

Tomorrow: A Good Mild Mania.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

IF WE COULD CHANGE, WORLD WE'D MAKE THE LOVER LOVED

We all have met the person who thinks he—or she—could have made a much more successful world than this. They are seldom very successful in running their own lives, but are optimists when it comes to a really big job like this. Of course none of us are in this class, but don't you occasionally wish you could make one or two things just a bit different? For instance, when one person loves another very dearly, wouldn't it be nice if it could be arranged that the love should be mutual? Especially around Christmas time it does seem as if everyone should be happy and no aching hearts because the boy—or girl—friend does not reciprocate.

"My dear Mrs. Lee I am 17 and have been going with a boy for almost two years. Up until just lately he seemed to worship me. One night he told me he had had another date the night before. I asked him why he did it. He said he desired other girls. I asked him about the love he had made to me and why he had made it. He didn't mean it. He declared he did mean it, but he was through. He tells my friends that he is in love with another girl, a girl he has only known two weeks. He is always with her.

"Now, Mrs. Lee, I think so much of this boy and we had planned so much for the future that the thought of not having him almost drives me crazy. What I wish is that you could give me some good sound advice about the affair. Tell me what to do to make this young man notice me and love me again as I know he did once.

"WISTFUL AND BLUE."

I am very sorry, dear, but I can't. If the young man has lost interest in you nothing probably can revive it. It is perfectly natural at his age, that he perch, and so noisy that we couldn't hear ourselves think. "So we left."

"We had heard the Two-Legs talk about coming to America, and we thought that what was good for humans must be good for birds, and so here we are."

The Turtle Doves looked about them and it seemed to Peter that they were a bit sad.

"Well, how do you like America?" asked he.

It was a moment before the Doves spoke, and then Mr. Turtle Dove answered.

"Oh, very much in deed, as far as the country goes," said he. There are lots of fine things over here that we never had at home.

"Food, for instance; why there is plenty of it; all the seeds that we can possibly eat. We dine on peas today and tomorrow we are intending to make a visit to the corn field. Change one's diet as often as one can, that is my motto."

"Over home we sometimes had all we could do to keep from starving to death. There are so many of us, you see, and sometimes the crops were good and sometimes they were not."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

HIS FOURFOLD SUFFERING.—But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. —Isa. 53:5.

PROTECTING SUCKERS

Calvin Coolidge, in a recent address, made the following pertinent statement: "The ultimate reformers of business must be the business men themselves."

Since its inception in 1914, the Better Business Bureau movement has proved Mr. Coolidge's point. At that time business was a hit and miss proposition. There was much violation of the Marquis of Queensbury rules and the advertiser who was the best Ananias usually got the business.

Business foresaw that such methods would eventually destroy public confidence. Accordingly a Better Business Bureau movement took form to "raise the standards of advertising and increase the public's confidence in advertising." Thus, business organized its own housecleaning organization to cut out misleading advertising, unfair tactics, unfair contracts, competitive knocking, commercial bribery and financial frauds. Forty-four Bureaus thrive in the United States, with a national office in New York City.

Like all others, this bureau operates in two fields, merchandise and financial. In the financial field the Bureau is educating the public to investigate before investing their savings, and unbiased facts on proposed investments are given to the public without cost. It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of dollars are saved this trade territory every year through the Bureau's efforts in exposing frauds. It co-operates with the Blue Sky departments of the various states in investigation of concerns seeking to sell stock in dubious propositions, and with the postoffice inspectors office in tracing down mail frauds.

Just now a determined fight is being waged against the alleged "tip" sheets which are being mailed out by so-called market forecasters urging the purchase of speculative securities. This type of faker uses the telephone and telegraph system extensively in defrauding the public and repeated warnings have been issued against this scheme over the radio, and through newspapers who wish to protect their readers.

Many banks serve as "listening posts" for the Better Business Bureau.

Go to them when the stock salesman calls. For all prospective investors will do well to heed the slogan of the Better Business Bureau—"Before you invest, investigate."

RIOT OF COLOR FOR KITCHENS

Drab kitchens are relics of the past. The modern food foundry in the average home is enlivened with color. Gaily painted utensils fill the drawers, line the cupboards and rest on the stove. The walls, chairs and tables are not without a certain cheerfulness and vivacity added to them by a coat of lacquer or enamel.

A writer in a current magazine tells how to make the work place of the housewife more attractive. "In the first place," says the writer, "refinish the wooden handles of all your cooking tools. All dressed up thus, they make a most inviting family."

"A gaily painted knife box, a salt box enameled in white with bright decorations, the transformation of the bread board, all add to the cheerfulness of the kitchen."

But the writer neglects to tell how to decorate the furnace room so that scooping ashes will be one of the great joys of life.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

MURDEROUS DRIVING

Friends or foes say Massachusetts is wet. It is said that thousands of Bay State folks think wet, hope wet, and vote wet. But this same state is very rough on tipsy auto drivers. A drunken driver is swept into jail pretty quickly. A motorist found driving his car "under the influence" loses his license and he has to wait a year before he can even apply for another. Whatever we may think of prohibition the use of liquor has some very practical aspects.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

A speaker of note at a Parent-Teacher convention makes the charge that the public schools are better adapted to girls than to boys. She finds it much harder to keep the nose of the boy on the grindstone of education. Perhaps this charge is of questionable merit. The school system today is doubtless better than ever before in the history of the republic. Boys and girls are just as smart or smarter. It is so much a matter of individual handling, or earnest application, of home habits, that it is hardly just to charge the school system with not being well adapted to boys.

The speaker, Mrs. Cornelia James Cannon, by the way, concludes with a significant word about the problem we all face. She says:

"It is a new changed world that our children are coming into, and I am afraid that we are not very good leaders because we ourselves have the greatest difficulty in sensing their new environment. Our temptation is great to think too highly and too often of the 'good old days.' But we are here to fight senility in ourselves, in civilization and, I suspect, in the school system."

BRIDGES TO HISTORY

Virginia opens three bridges which have wondrous historical as well as modern, practical significance. The famous Virginia peninsula, where the traveler finds the site of ancient Jamestown, settled in 1607, and Williamsburg, the colonial capital, and Yorktown where Cornwallis surrendered, is connected with Norfolk and Portsmouth. Those who love to hunt for history along old roads and new will be delighted.

The Diary

New Yorker

By WALTER WINCHELL

NEW YORK.—It appears that they have to come to New York to get in the big money after all. Nigger Nate Raymond, the dapper gambler, who, it is said, sat in the same game with Rothstein in which $350,000 changed hands, runs a "game" in Los Angeles. It is located in the sepi belt, and the racket is "craps" or "numbered aggravators." The limit bet is only a dollar, but dimes that "he does" or "doesn't" are (like contributions to a column) cheerfully accepted.

WHERE THEY MAKE LAWS

It happened in Washington, D. C., the other night. A pair of New York news photographers were there and, after making inquiries, learned that they could get some laughing soup by calling Franklin 4000 and mentioning a certain name. "But be sure," warned the informant, "that you don't call Main 4000, for that's the police station." One of the hocus focus lads phoned, and when a voice answered he said: "I am a friend of sound's. Can you send over a bottle of gin?" "Hell!" growled the voice, "this is Main 4000. You want Franklin 4000!"

THE PARK RAWGUE!

Frank Garlasco of the Club Lido forwards the one about the reporter who went to interview a phamous phim star who had just been divorced from an even more famous husband.

"Why did I leave him?" she echoed. "Say, did you ever live with a genius?"

"Sure," retorted the potential columnist, "I live alone."

LAUDER, BUT NOT FUNNIER

Sir Harry Lauder was playing golf on a course near his home with a friend, who asked him if he could explain the significance of a pile of rough stones near the eighteenth hole.

"It's verra simple," calmly replied Sir Harry. "It's a cad-die's monument. I once lost a wee ba' thereabouts, an' he died o' starvation lookin' for it."

PLAYING "HARD-TO-GET"

When the new musical hit "Rainbow" was polishing off the rough edges in Baltimore recently it was witnessed by Henry L. Mencken, marking the first musical production the famous commentator had seen in fifteen years. Naturally the press agent of the show hoped to get a quote out of the "name," so he asked his opinion.

"It has the greatest music," was the evasive answer, "since 'Onward, Christian Soldiers.'"

AND THE ADORABLE MISS CORNELL

Not a few of the critics have been hypnotized into believing that the plays which star the spellbinding Katherine Cornell were potential hits. This enraptured spectator left the Empire lmp again after witnessing and enjoying every moment of her playacting in Gilbert Miller's production of "The Age of Innocence." But with all of the adroit actress' spell, the new piece's charm, its breath of old New York and its frequently interesting story, it will, one fears, not be rewarded.

It is done in the Gilbert Miller manner, no less. It is a dramatization of Edith Wharton's novel of the same title by Marjorie Ayer Barnes, and it is staged by Guthrie McClintic. It is difficult to imagine any one arranging a better dramatization than that embrodered by the adapter, yet it lags, and even the third episode is unfolded (there are five of them) the annual sets in.

HARRY KENDALL THAW

They are almost as negligent as steamship owners, who send ships to South America with incompetent crews and leaky lifeboats, it seems.

in his speech—armed with every known argument to prove that America's very life as a nation depends on her possession of a formidable sea establishment.

And here we have him now, out-lining to Premier Baldwin a plan for a meeting in Canada, between his committee and a parliamentary committee of the Premier's selection, to discuss Anglo-American warship equality!

Britten is an individual of no finesse whatever.

His great asset is a forceful personality. As a boxer, he is a slugger. He has the same detail about it, but a prodigious amount of power.

This message to Stanky Baldwin illustrates his method. As soon as he thought of the idea, he promptly sat him down and dictated it to his stenographer; then dispatched it immediately, by cable, without consulting anybody.

He did not even tell anybody afterward—did not consider it worth while, apparently.

The leak came from all accounts, when the astonished old world premier showed the communication to his friends in London. Naturally, back came plenty of inquiries, as fast as electricity could bring them.

As soon as he was asked about it, "Yes," said Britten, coolly, "certainly I sent it. What of it?"

If Fred Britten has turned his energies from war to peace, perhaps we shall have to have it—peace, that is to say.

Fred is nothing if not energetic. But, if ever there was an astonishing transformation, we behold it right now, in this latest complex of our house of representatives naval affairs committee chairman.

The operation is not a difficult one, and can be done under local anesthesia. That infection is probably the cause of your other troubles.

"Will you please tell us why some growing children get wheezy after a wild picnic feast of hot dogs, ice cream, sweets and drinks?" MRS. J.

Certain children and adults are sensitive to certain foods, and these foods will give different manifestations, among them the hives, eczema, asthma. The average child can have little sprees of over-eating, apparently without much ill effect, but these sensitized ones will always suffer.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

IF WE COULD CHANGE WORLD WE'D MAKE THE LOVER LOVED

We all have met the person who thinks he—or she—could have made a much more successful world than this. They are seldom very successful in running their own lives, but are optimistic when it comes to a really big job like this. Of course none of us are in this class, but don't you occasionally wish you could make one or two things just a bit different? For instance, when one person loves another very dearly, wouldn't it be nice if it could be arranged that the love should be mutual? Especially around Christmas time it does seem as if everyone should be happy and no aching hearts because the boy—or girl—friend does not reciprocate.

"My dear Mrs. Lee! I am 17 and have been going with a boy for almost two years. Up until just lately he seemed to worship me. One night recently he seemed peeved and told me he had had another date the night before. I asked him why he did it. He said he desired other girls. I asked him about the love he had made to me and why he did it if he didn't mean it. He declared he did mean it, but he was through. He tells my friends that he is in love with another girl, a girl he has only known two weeks. He is always with her.

"Now, Mrs. Lee, I think so much of this boy and we had planned so much for the future that the thought of not having him almost drives me crazy. What I wish is that you could give me some good sound advice about the affair. Tell me what to do to make this young man notice me and love me again as I know he did once."

"WISTFUL AND BLUE." I am very sorry, dear, but I can't. If the young man has lost interest in you nothing probably, can revive it. It is perfectly natural at his age, that he should change. You must simply put up a brave front—eyes to the front, head high—and wait until time heals your hurt feelings.

Remember "Sunny," who boy friend is working his way through college and has a much money to take her to. She was perfectly happy to be at home and they had good times together, but her mother advised her to go out with other friends who could give her the kind of time that cost money. In response to my question, who would my readers do, a girl writes:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: You ask what we would do if we were Sunny. I would do exactly what she is doing. I feel that she will regret that she helped him through. My boy friend was forced to help his mother. We waited a long time before we had enough to marry on. We stayed home from many shows, dances and parties. Everyone thought me crazy.

"We have been married 16 months now and I am so happy. All because I gave up pleasure. We always say, first duty, then fun. I hope you will stick by him, Sunny. You'll never be sorry."

"HAPPY WIFE." "Dear Mrs. Lee: I work in an automobile place doing all kinds of office work. As my boss is hardly ever in and I always have two or three hours a day to myself and sometimes more. I would like to know if you could help me in finding something to do in my spare time. I thank you. M. M."

Your letter leaves me up in the name, M. M. Your name, Marion, might be that of either a man or woman. If you are a man, as I suspect, why not advise that you will take care of a small set of books in your spare time, or you could take up study to fit you for a higher position and study in your spare time.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WHY THE TURTLE DOVES LEFT HOME

"Where was your country, Dove?" asked Peter, determined to find out all he could about the doves while he was about it. "Many, many miles away from here, in the country the Two-Legs call Italy," answered Mr. Turtle Dove. "It is nice and warm there and not half as hot as it is in Africa, where we were born, nor so cold as it is in England, where we spend part of the summer, but just right. We have traveled a great deal, wife and I, and we do not believe that there is any other place half so fine. We call it our really true home, because we like it best."

"Then why did you leave it to come away here?" The boy could not understand. The Turtle Dove explained. "I don't wonder you ask," said he. "But you see it was like this. Perhaps you have heard that Turtle Doves are the most affectionate birds in the world. Well, it is all right to love your wife and your babies, but to keep telling them so all the time and right out loud, makes the neighbors tired. Anyhow, it did wife and me. From daylight to dark we had to listen to 'I love you dear.'"

"How sweet you are, my darling," until we just couldn't stand it any longer. "If there had been only a few families in our woods it would have been all right. But there were hundreds and hundreds of them, and it got so crowded that we could hardly find room to perch, and so noisy that we couldn't hear ourselves think.

"So we left. "We had heard the Two-Legs talk about coming to America, and we thought that was good for humans what was good for birds, and so here we are." The Turtle Doves looked about them and it seemed to Peter that they were a bit sad.

"Well, how do you like America?" asked he. "It was a moment before the Doves spoke, and then Mr. Turtle Dove answered. "Oh, very much in deed, as far as the country goes," said he. "There are lots of fine things over here that we never had at home. "Food, for instance; why there is plenty of it; all the seeds that we can possibly eat. We dined on peas today and tomorrow we are intending to make a visit to the corn field. Change one's diet as often as one can, that is my motto.

"Over home we sometimes had all we could do to keep from starving to death. There are so many of us, you see, and sometimes the crops were good and sometimes they were not."

Xenia Central High School's "Buccaneers," who landed in third place in the freakish football championship race instead of winning the title, because of a two-point defeat by Sidney, placed three of its stars on the all-Miami Valley High School League first team of 1928 as selected by coaches of the six schools.

The Buccaneers' stars chosen for the first eleven were Ralph Scurry, colored flash, and Robert Buell, in the backfield, and John Gibney, at end.

Troy High, which finished fourth, is represented by four players on the first team, Fregin at tackle, J. Scott at guard; Cress at center and Hayner in the backfield.

Strangely enough, Piqua and Greenville, which tied for the league championship, were scarcely represented on the first team. Piqua players were selected for two positions, Hilbert at end and Cron in the backfield, while Weinschenk at a tackle post brought Sidney its only recognition.

Miamisburg, which finished in last place, is represented by Bashford at guard. Not a single Greenville player made the grade for the first team, although placing five players on the second squad.

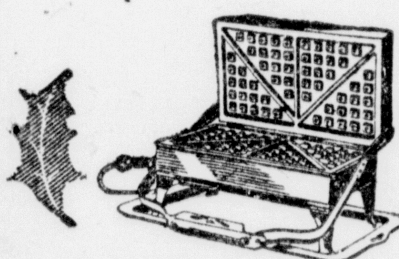

There was a surprising unanimity of opinion for the first team posts and two backfield stars were unanimous choices for the first eleven. Captain Hayner of Troy, halfback, and Fullback Cron of Piqua were accorded places on every first team submitted by the mentors. As selected, the first team has weight and speed in the line and backfield.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES
A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dry, itchy, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Taken regularly for a week, see how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

CEDARVILLE BEATS ANTIOCH IN OPENING COURT SESSION

Playing its inaugural game of the season, the Cedarville College "Yellow-Jackets" breezed along to a 42 to 25 victory over Antioch College's Division "A" basketball team at Alford gymnasium at Cedarville Saturday night.

Cedarville achieved an easy victory, leading 25 to 12 at the half. Antioch braced in the last half when Coach Borg began to substitute freely and two teams played on a more even basis.

Cedarville started a veteran lineup with Turner and Allen at forwards, Smith at center and Jacobs and Gordon at guards. The "Yellow-Jackets" showed a keen eye for the basket for so early in the season, turning fully 40 per cent of their shots into points.

Allen was high-point man of the game, collecting sixteen markers, followed by Smith with fourteen, and Turner with six. Allen in particular hit the basket from every conceivable angle with uncanny regularity.

Captain Toomire, playing a guard position, was outstanding in the Antioch lineup and weighed in with eight points. Hoerr made ten. Cedarville's next game is with Wilmington College at Wilmington Wednesday night. Antioch meets Jerry Katherman's Capital University quintet at Columbus next Saturday night.

Cedarville College Reserves defeated Pitchin High School 14 to 12 in the preliminary.

COLD MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights. Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating. No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color. Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Cedarville started a veteran lineup with Turner and Allen at forwards, Smith at center and Jacobs and Gordon at guards. The "Yellow-Jackets" showed a keen eye for the basket so early in the season, turning fully 40 per cent of their shots into points.

Allen was highpoint man of the game, collecting sixteen markers, followed by Smith with fourteen, and Turner with six. Allen in particular hit the basket from every conceivable angle with uncanny regularity.

Captain Toomire, playing a guard position, was outstanding in the Antioch lineup and weighed in

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, (adv.)

On Trial for Her Life

Shocked the "400"

United in companionate marriage in face of bitter criticism from both pulpit and press, Aubrey Roselle and his wife, the former Josephine Haldeman-Julius of Girard, Kans., announce after twelvemonth of matrimony that experiment has been a huge success. The photo shows them in an intimate pose.

Shells burst all around her at the front in France, but Marlyse Maye, war nurse, courageously stuck to her advance dressing station and won a decoration and the heart of an American soldier. Now she's on trial for life on charge of slaying her sweetheart, Andrew De Vola. Photo shows her, a mere shell of her former robust self, being carried to taxi from Bronx (New York) supreme court.

Anthony J. (Tony) Drexel Biddle, Jr., blue-blooded sportsman and man about town, didn't go bolshevik or anything like that. But—he got the same result. For the way the "400" gasped when it learned Tony had taken over management of Rene De Vos, French boxer, is nobody's business. The young millionaire said he did it for a "thrill."

Unable to resist the lure of candy and a movie, Joseph Storelli (right), 7, of 165 First avenue, New York, willingly followed a stranger to his doom. Upon receipt of telegraphed confession of Joseph Zudenowski, in Detroit, Captain William E. Hogue (left), of Jersey City, police, found boy's body in a lonely marsh near Secaucus. Joseph had been missing from his home since Nov. 17 last.

ROOSEVELT'S NIECE FACING REAL JOB IN ALBANY MANSION

MANAGE EXECUTIVE MANSION AND LOOK AFTER HER HUSBAND.

KEEPS TAB ON HER FOUR SONS AWAY ATTENDING SCHOOL.

RUNS A FURNITURE FACTORY AT HYDE PARK, N.Y.

TEACHES ENGLISH AND AMERICAN HISTORY AT A GIRLS' SCHOOL IN NEW YORK CITY.

STUDIES AT ALL TIMES.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

By ALEXANDER C. HERMAN
ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 10.—The new governor's lady of New York will be the busiest in the land.

For not only will Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt run the executive mansion after January 1, look after her husband, keep tabs on four sons away at school, but she also will run a furniture factory and teach at a girls' school in New York City.

Her past performance is an index of the future. It is a dead certainty that Mrs. Roosevelt will carry on all her activities with success and ease.

Even during the height of the exciting campaign (which swung her Democratic husband into office in face of an overwhelming Republican vote for the presidency) Mrs. Roosevelt never failed her classes at the Todd-Hunter school for girls. She taught them their two hours a day of English and American history and, as a side line, executed her duties as vice principal.

Even on Election Night, when the whole state was frenzied figuring out who was winning the close gubernatorial race, she was busy bringing six of her pupils to the Democratic headquarters for a demonstration of history in the making.

Because of the commutation strain, Mrs. Roosevelt will switch her schedule so that she will crowd her classes into three days a week. She expects to leave the capital on Tuesday nights, reach New York slowly, who may run up to Hyde Park, where she has been running a furniture factory for the past two years. But two of her friends, who are partners in the enterprise, will try hard to relieve her of detail.

The factory, it is almost needless to add, is not being run for business gain. It is operated to teach a trade to the poorer boys of the neighborhood.

At all times, Mrs. Roosevelt is ready to run up to look after her own four boys—at school in Groton and Cambridge, Mass.

All of which would be a woman-size job for any active person—without adding to it the strains and cares that come with running an executive mansion.

Will Not Shirk
But Mrs. Roosevelt will shirk none of the duties. If anything, she will add to them. For she knows that her husband is in line to be his party's leader—the one victor in an overwhelming defeat.

But she figures that during the mid-week, particularly when the legislature is in session, her husband will be too busy with governmental cares to bother much with entertaining. So her school work and furniture factory will not keep her from being an active governor's lady.

Despite all her activity, she continues being a student herself—at all times studying and keeping up with current history.

If ever pedagogues work out a psychological test for the qualifications of a state executive's wife, Mrs. Roosevelt should get a grade that would make her smartest pupils envious.

FIRE WAS IN STOVE

Firemen, summoned to a garage at the rear of 509 W. Second St. at 1:45 p. m. Sunday, found the rear of the building filled with smoke, but no fire. The smoke came from a stove and neighbors had turned in the alarm. The fire department has now responded to 125 alarms, as compared with 100 in the entire year of 1927.

COLLEEN MOORE

In Her First Great Super-Special

LILAC TIME

WITH GARY COOPER

ROMANCE

A piquant, carefree maid of France, and a Flying Ace from overseas. SHE had been a Stranger to Love till she fell in love with this handsome young Stranger. . . . HE had courted Death, 'til he found this greater love! And now in the springtime of their rapturous romance Death returns, seeking her lost sweetheart.

COMEDY

All the delightful comedy that you enjoy in every Colleen Moore picture is in "LILAC TIME," in addition to the vast air spectacle and tense romance. As a saucy, vivacious French peasant girl. . . . "mothering" a troop of flying dare-devils, "bossing" the Major and ordering Colonels about as though they were privates, Colleen is at her amusing best.

KID MADE WELL AND HAPPY AGAIN BY NEW KONJOLA

ictim of Nervousness and Other Ills Completely Restored in Three Weeks by New Medicine.

Young and old, the child and the aged, are benefited alike by Konjola, the new medicine, for this compound is designed to give relief to all. As powerful as Konjola is, conquering the most obstinate cases of years standing, it is designed to minister to the ill the youngest child. Konjola is medicine—every drop—and everyone of the 32 ingredients comes directly from the great laboratories Mother Nature. Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing emetics, yet it works swiftly, powerfully and brings health that nestles to stay. Those who are ill and who would know again the joy of health means in life, should get the Konjola Man, who is at Gailaher drug store, 33 East 11th street, Xenia where he is king of the marvels accomplished by drugs, no heart-depressing or suffer without results, and Konjola is a medicine renowned for quick and lasting restoration health when all else has failed. As thought, for instance, to the case of Miss Flossie Stafford, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Stafford, R. R. No. 1, Xenia. This city little lady suffered from extreme nervousness and other ailments ever since she was five years of age. Just a few days ago, mother, Mrs. Della Stafford, told the Konjola Man:

"My daughter has improved so lately after taking Konjola for three weeks, that we can hardly believe our eyes. Ever since she was five years of age Flossie was very nervous, the result of a very trouble. We did everything we could to check this condition, but she did not respond to prescriptions nor medicines of any kind. She was far back in her school work, lacked ambition, was underweight, and every night was forced to get up three or four times on account of the kidney condition. We were greatly worried about her, fearing that her condition would become chronic. Her husband had such wonderful faith in Konjola that we decided to try it. Just a few days ago, we got better day by day, and in three weeks her nervousness had disappeared, the necessity of night-rising passed, and her appetite returned. The change in her is simply wonderful. She is excited in school, in her play and in her other duties. At one time she was so nervous that she liked in her sleep every night, she sleeps like a baby, and gaining in weight and strength. I shall never forget what Konjola did for our daughter and for her husband. Surely Konjola has been a godsend to our home. Let a rare case at all. Konjola is peculiarly effective in such cases, as many of fathers and mothers have been made happy by the fact that Konjola has given their children who seemed doomed to a life of misery before Konjola was used."

The Konjola Man is at the Gailaher Drug Store, 33 East Main street, Xenia, where he is meeting the ill daily, and explaining the merits of this amazing compound.

LET'S LIVE! MILDRED LAMB

READ THIS FIRST:

The marriage of Byrd Hamilton of Jacksonville, and Larry Brown, a successful young business man from Cleveland, was one of unusual simplicity and beauty; but several factors, of deep significance to her happiness, caused an uneasiness in Byrd's mind, even during the ceremony, and within the next few days grew into a definite anxiety. For Larry had undoubted magnetism, a charm, that women couldn't resist, and had brought him already a dubious success in business. And he had become the center of a young crowd whose only interests in life were jazz, speed and money.

Larry's friends became a permanent entertainment committee, constantly arranging dinners and parties. The group consisted of Tiny and Fred Oberman, who has made a fortune in rather doubtful enterprises; Jack Duncan, who made love to all women and was unscrupulous in business; his wife, Margy, who has broken under the care of her three little children and the worry over her indifferent husband; Chet Everson and India Campbell, known as the "wildcat" and a former sweetheart of Larry's.

Byrd was distressed over Larry's extravagance, his inability to give her a monthly allowance when he was paying large sums to his bookkeeper, and his engagements with India. Just the night before he and India had gone somewhere to dine and dance.

Yesterday, in hurrying to Margy's house to help her with her sick baby, Byrd had damaged a fender. Knowing that Larry had seen it, she decided to admit the accident and explained that she expected to pay the bill from a savings account of three hundred dollars which her father would send. As a matter of fact, Larry and India had an accident the night they went to the dance, which had obliterated the scar Byrd had inflicted.

Byrd allowed herself to be persuaded by Larry to ask her father for a loan to buy some stock in the Acme Axle, based on reliable information. When Byrd suggested that they invest the wedding gift of five thousand dollars her father had made them, Larry confessed that it had already been spent on "high-priced honeymooners, the new car, pre-war debts, etc." Larry had a casual way of talking about thousands, as most people talk of pennies or dollars.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

Byrd sighed, and shook her golden, bird-like head as if it couldn't cope with the most exasperating problems of the universe, nor ever find an answer to that most perplexing enigma, how to manage a husband.

"No woman can ever make a man see the errors of his ways by constantly pointing them out to him. She just better wait for a ton of bricks to fall on his head and knock him unconscious," she said, half aloud; but she was not alone. She was alone in the world, and she was alone in her heart.

Postmaster Frazer said that if patrons of the postal service will place their return address on all letters and cards, the postal department will return them in case they cannot be delivered to the addressee.

She wondered if that age-old philosophical truth would ever change:

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart."

Then she had agreed to stand by Larry "for better, for worse."

Even if "for worse" was far more terrifying than her brave, little mind could ever have anticipated.

Byrd shook herself impatiently out of this meditative state. She had been brooding altogether too much lately.

She'd hustle around and go to the bank to get the money for the fender that Chet had promised her.

But before Byrd could put her little nose out of the apartment door, she paid tribute to her mother's training by observing an abbreviated program of her house-keeping rites.

She opened the windows wide all over the apartment, and planned back the draperies. She threw the hand-made quilts back over the foot of the beds. She washed up the breakfast dishes, stopping religiously to remove the stains from the kitchen knives, and to scour the sink.

She brushed the apartment and dusted it.

In the bathroom, she shook her head chidingly at a happy-go-lucky Larry, and picked up a pair of pajamas that still lay in collapsed circles, showing just where his two, fine, straight legs had walked out of them.

She hung up bath towels, strewn

"Hello, Early Bird," said Chet.

around the floor, put away his shaving things, and finally she got down on her knees and, with a scouring powder, removed those tell-tale rings that encircled the tub each day after Larry's bath.

Never having known Larry's mother, who had died many years ago, she wondered just how much mothers were to blame for these deficiencies in their sons.

But here she was, like everybody else, picking up and carrying for him.

Everybody but India. India was possessed of that magic which prevailed upon all men so that they fetched and carried for her.

The Euclid branch of the First National Bank was only a five-minute walk from the apartment. Byrd found Chet in a small private office in the new building. His name was printed on the ground-glass door.

Beautiful, feathery Circeanian walnut paneled the walls to the ceiling. A polished table and five and high-backed chairs gave an air of importance to the room. And these surroundings seemed actually to add inches to Chet's stature.

It dawned on Byrd that Chet measured up to the room, and she seemed to see in his firm, slender body, the hazy outlines of the future president of the First National.

Byrd stopped abruptly on the threshold. She showed that she was impressed.

And Chet's eyes, frankly worried and distraught, sought Byrd's, seeming to say that he appreciated her keen perceptions, her clear and unrelenting vision which were struggling so bravely not to be swept into the whirlpools that were eddying around her.

"Hello, Early Bird," he said, his lips turned up in a conventional smile, attempting to conceal the worry which lay in his eyes.

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart."

Then she had agreed to stand by Larry "for better, for worse."

Even if "for worse" was far more terrifying than her brave, little mind could ever have anticipated.

Byrd shook herself impatiently out of this meditative state. She had been brooding altogether too much lately.

She'd hustle around and go to the bank to get the money for the fender that Chet had promised her.

But before Byrd could put her little nose out of the apartment door, she paid tribute to her mother's training by observing an abbreviated program of her house-keeping rites.

She opened the windows wide all over the apartment, and planned back the draperies. She threw the hand-made quilts back over the foot of the beds. She washed up the breakfast dishes, stopping religiously to remove the stains from the kitchen knives, and to scour the sink.

She brushed the apartment and dusted it.

In the bathroom, she shook her head chidingly at a happy-go-lucky Larry, and picked up a pair of pajamas that still lay in collapsed circles, showing just where his two, fine, straight legs had walked out of them.

She hung up bath towels, strewn

seductively, to Chet. "All you need is a date, a throne done in royal purple, and a line of supplicants begging for gold from the royal exchequer."

Under India's bantering there was a thin edge of scorn.

India never respected any one or any thing long.

"I've got a lot of work to do this morning," said Chet, irritated.

"Anything I can do for you?"

"Not in that tone, old dear," said India, in her throatiest tones. "Not unless you say you'd love to do me a favor and would consider it a rare privilege."

She laughed her low, seductive laugh.

Chet looked at her coolly. And analyzing it, he discovered he wasn't moved by it.

If he were a piano-tuner, he might be interested to know how she muted the high strings in the larynx, for he knew she could deliberately vibrate those chords to the mood of her victim.

The white handbag on her arm was noticeable under the black georgette.

There was no doubt that India had taste and style in dress. She always did the bizarre, the quixotic thing.

As now, when the streets were full of pastel-shaded summer frocks, India made a stunning and startling figure in black with a grey fox scarf and close black hat of straw, and in mid-winter, when the eye tired on the procession of fur coats and fur-trimmed suits, India caused a flurry in the downtown stores by appearing all in white.

"You'd like to borrow a little money to pay the doctor bill," said Chet, staring frowningly at her arm.

"Bravo, little Anna Eva Fay," India jeered, "but you surely don't blame me for being in an accident."

India had borrowed money from men for years—anyone from whom she could weede a loan.

The clerks in the men's wear at the department store where she worked had been her first victims, and each guiltily concealed the facts from others. Chet had long ago forgotten how much money he had given her from time to time, for India had encouraged him to forget. There was no doubt that she did!

"If I don't get it, some one else will!" she used to say to him to let him know she deplored his generosity as much as any one.

And it was true. For in those days Chet used money as a commodity to get what he desired for himself and his friends. Money was meant to have a good time with.

"I can lend you fifty dollars, but I'd like a note, and it's the last time."

"I'm investing a little every month," said Chet, looking into her eyes without flinching.

"No, thanks, old Midas," said India, with a short under

READ THIS FIRST:

The marriage of Byrd Hamilton of Jacksonville, and Larry Brown, a successful young business man from Cleveland, was one of unusual simplicity and beauty; but several factors, of deep significance to her happiness, caused an uneasiness in Byrd's mind, even during the ceremony, and within the next few days grew into a definite anxiety. For Larry had undoubted magnetism, a charm, that women couldn't resist, and had brought him already a dubious success in business. And he had become the center of a young crowd whose only interests in life were jazz, speed and money.

Larry's friends became a permanent entertainment committee, constantly arranging dinners and parties. The group consists of Tiny and Fred Oberman, who has made a fortune in rather doubtful enterprises; Jack Duncan, who made love to all women and was unscrupulous in business; his wife, Noddy, who has broken under the care of her three little children and the worry over her indifferent husband; Chet Everson and India Campbell, known as the "wildcat" and a former sweetheart of Larry's.

Byrd was distressed over Larry's extravagance, his inability to give her a monthly allowance when he was paying large sums to his bootlegger, and his engagements with India. Just the night before he and India had gone somewhere to dine and dance.

Yesterday, in hurrying to Margy's house to help her with her sick baby, Byrd had damaged a fender. Knowing that Larry had seen it, she decided to admit the accident and explained that she expected to pay the bill from a savings account of three hundred dollars which her father would send. As a matter of fact, Larry and India had an accident the night they went to the dance, which had obliterated the scar Byrd had inflicted.

Byrd allowed herself to be persuaded by Larry to ask her father for a loan to buy some stock in the Acme Axle, based on reliable information. When Byrd suggested that they invest the wedding gift of five thousand dollars her father had made them, Larry confessed that it had already been spent on "high-priced honeymooners, the new car, pre-war debts, etc." Larry had a casual way of talking about thousands, as most people talk of pennies or dollars.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

Byrd sighed, and shook her golden, bird-like head as if it couldn't cope with the most exasperating problems of the universe, nor ever find an answer to that most perplexing enigma, how to manage a husband.

"No woman can ever make a man see the errors of his ways by constantly pointing them out to him. She just better wait for a ton of bricks to fall on his head and knock him unconscious," she said, half aloud; but she was in the same breath that Larry would escape the avalanche before it came.

It only she could train herself to have a separate existence outside of Larry, just as he had outside of her, instead of always being so hopelessly conscious of her love for him.

She wondered if that age-old philosophical truth would ever change:

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart."

"His woman's whole existence."

Then she had agreed to stand by Larry "for better, for worse."

Even if "for worse" was far more terrifying than her brave, little mind could ever have anticipated.

Byrd shook herself impatiently out of this meditative state. She had been brooding altogether too much lately.

She'd hustle around and go to the bank to get the money for the fender that Chet had promised her.

But before Byrd ever put her little nose out of the apartment door, she paid tribute to her mother's training by observing an abbreviated program of her house-keeping rites.

She opened the windows wide all over the apartment, and planned back the draperies. She threw the hand-made quilts back over the foot of the beds. She washed up the breakfast dishes, stopping religiously to remove the stains from the kitchen knives, and to scour the sink.

She brushed the apartment and dusted it.

In the bathroom, she shook her head chidingly at a happy-go-lucky Larry, and picked up a pair of pajamas that still lay in collapsed circles, showing just where his two, fine, straight legs had walked out of them.

She hung up bath towels, strewn

"Hello, Early Bird," said Chet.

around the tile floor, but away his shaving things, and finally she got down on her knees and, with a scouring powder, removed those tell-tale rings that encircled the tub each day after Larry's bath.

Never having known Larry's mother, who had died many years ago, she wondered just how much mothers were to blame for these deficiencies in their sons.

But here she was, like everybody else, picking up and carrying for him.

Everybody but India. India was possessed of that fatal magic which prevailed upon all men so that they treasured and carried for her.

The Euclid branch of the First National Bank was only a five-minute walk from the apartment. Byrd found Chet in a small private office in the new building. His name was printed on the ground-glass door.

Beautiful, feathery Circassian walnut panelled the walls to the ceiling. A polished table and files and high-backed chairs gave an air of importance to the room. And these surroundings seemed actually to add inches to Chet's stature.

It dawned on Byrd that Chet measured up to the room, and she seemed to see in his firm, slender body, the bary outlines of the future president of the First National.

Byrd stopped abruptly on the threshold. She showed that she was impressed.

And Chet's eyes, frankly worried and distraught, sought Byrd's, seeming to say that he appreciated her keen perceptions, her quick and accurate decisions, her clear and unflinching vision which were struggling so bravely not to be swept into the whirlpools that were eddying around her.

"Hello, Early Bird," he said, his lips turned up into a conventional smile, attempting to conceal the worry which lay in his eyes.

For Chet had reasons to be concerned.

He had just had two visitors in succession. And they had set him thinking.

India had put in an appearance just after he, himself, had arrived.

In spite of himself, Chet had felt, momentarily, that old, quickened pulse, as her small, languorous body swayed into the room.

Her almond-shaped eyes were accented with heavy markings of eyebrow pencil, with lids and lashes heavily shaded. They looked like black diamonds glittering in a hard, scintillating way.

India always reminded Chet of those Cleopatra-like figures that were silhouetted on the tombs of Egyptian kings, swaying, tigerish, languid figures, under whose torpor and seething and foaming of unrestrained passions.

"Hello, darling," said India, in her intimate way, her languid voice almost brushing the cheek like an indolent caress.

As her eyes turned up to his, Chet felt that they had an uncanny Egyptian slant. A feline slant. A soft, purring, languorous cat ready to pounce upon her prey.

"Gosh! This is home office. Everything smeared with dignity? And respectability? It scares me!"

She kept rolling her sparkling eyes around the room and back again, per as was blazing in her eyes.

seductively, to Chet. "All you need is a date, a throne done in royal purple, and a line of suppliants begging for gold from the royal exchequer."

Under India's bantering there was a thin edge of scorn.

India never respected any one or any thing long.

"I've got a lot of work to do this morning," said Chet, irritated.

"Not in that tone, old dear," said India, in her throatiest tones. "Not unless you say you'd love to do me a favor and would consider it a rare privilege."

She laughed her low, seductive laugh.

Chet looked at her coolly. And analyzing it, he discovered he wasn't moved by it.

If he were a piano-tuner, he might be interested to know how she muted the high strings in the larynx, for he knew she could deliberately vibrate those chords to the mood of her victim.

The white handbag on her arm was noticeable under the black georgette.

There was no doubt that India had taste and style in dress. She always did the bizarre, the quixotic thing.

A now, when the streets were full of pastel-shaded summer frocks, India made a stunning and startling figure in black with a grey fox scarf and close black hat of straw, and in mid-winter, when the eye tired on the procession of fur coats and fur-trimmed suits, India caused a flurry in the down town stores by appearing all in white.

"You'd like to borrow a little money to pay the doctor bill," said Chet, staring frowningly at her arm.

The Theater

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Hardly any announcement in the movie world equals that which makes known John Gilbert, will appear in a talking movie in Tolstoy's "Redemption"—"The Living Corpse."

To fully appreciate this, one must realize that no such profound work ever before has been contemplated for the talkies, that the greatest actors of the world have only measured up to it and only a few in modern times have conquered the role of the poet who decides to live his own life away from his wife.

John Barrymore acted the part in English for Arthur Hopkins.

Now Alexander Moissi, greatest German actor, is touring America with it in German with a company that I believe to be flawless. Indeed, the performance of Moissi and his company stands out in my mind as the most exquisite I ever have seen of any play.

John Gilbert, speaking the same lines in English before the camera, has something to shoot at. It is said he is eager to prove his ability at this new task.

For those who think the play a glum affair, I'll say it is full of chuckles. But above all, it is profound drama. I hope the talking movies will do it justice.

Max Reinhardt, Germany's master producer, due in the United States the middle of December for his first picture, will use sound in his first picture, but it will be no talkie. Lillian Gish will be the star. Hugo von Hofmannsthal, who writes anything from a grand opera libretto to a movie, has turned out the story.

Charles Rogers, otherwise known as Buddy, is proud as a peacock. Buddy wrote a song monickered after his current cinema, "Some One to Love," shown at the Bijou Sunday. It's being used as the theme melody for the flicker. Furthermore, a music publisher is to champion Buddy's jazz effort and the lad garners three cents on each copy sold. That's rather nice, of course, but the payoff to Buddy is that the song will see the light both in sheet music and celluloid.

YOUNG PEOPLE FORM BRANCH OF COUNTY RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

A number of young people of Xenia met at the First M. E. Church, Sunday afternoon to organize a Xenia unit of the Greene County Council of Religious Education.

The Rev. W. H. Tilford of the Presbyterian Church led the singing and the Scripture lesson was taken from the Twelfth Chapter of Romans, the "young people's chapter." The Ketter girls gave an instrumental duet.

McKinley Durnbaugh addressed the body, and told of the work that is expected to be accomplished. The Rev. S. L. Brill of the U. B. Church gave the principal talk. He declared so many churches are saying: "What are we going to do with the young people?" when the question should be "What are the young people going to do with us, the older folks?" He stressed that the young people must be given a responsibility in the Sunday School and church.

The officers of the county organization regret that more ministers throughout the county do not take an interest in young people at these meetings.

First M. E. Church, Xenia, took the banner for the largest delegation at Sunday's meeting. The next meeting will be held at the Presbyterian Church in Yellow Springs, for organization of that unit.

EAGLES WILL GIVE ANNUAL XMAS TREAT

To finance the purchasing of Christmas presents for children of the Greene County Children's Home, Xenia Aerie, No. 1689, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will sponsor a benefit motion picture show at the Orphium Theater Tuesday evening, December 18.

Tickets are being sold by members of the lodge at twenty-five cents each.

The Aerie annually visits the county institution and distributes holiday cheer to the youngsters. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the fraternity. Proceeds of the show will be used to buy gifts.

REV. JAMES STEELE CLAIMED BY DEATH

Word of the death of the Rev. James Dallas Steele, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Passaic, N. J., which occurred suddenly Saturday, has been received here.

The Rev. Mr. Steele often visited in Greene County and was well known here. Funeral services will be held Tuesday with burial in Philadelphia. Morton Dallas, Yellow Springs, is a cousin of the deceased.

FORMER XENIAN IS ACCIDENT VICTIM

Frank Wike, 40, former Xenian, nephew of Walter Wike, 135 High St., assistant postmaster of Xenia, was killed in an auto accident in Cleveland, O., Saturday according to word received by his uncle Sunday.

Wike was a son of the late Harry Wike. For many years his father was employed as a conductor on the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads.

He is survived by his widow and his mother, Mrs. Mamie Wike, Columbus, O.

The body will be brought to Xenia, arriving here at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning. Funeral services will be conducted at the home of his uncle, 135 High St., at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Interment will be made in Woodland Cemetery.

YOUNG PEOPLE FORM BRANCH OF COUNTY RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

A number of young people of Xenia met at the First M. E. Church, Sunday afternoon to organize a Xenia unit of the Greene County Council of Religious Education.

The Rev. W. H. Telford of the Presbyterian Church led the singing and the Scripture lesson was taken from the Twelfth Chapter of Romans, the "young people's chapter." The Ketter girls gave an instrumental duet.

McKinley Durnbaugh addressed the body, and told of the work that is expected to be accomplished. The Rev. S. L. Brill of the U. B. Church gave the principal talk. He declared so many churches are saying: "What are we going to do with the young people?" when the question should be "What are the young people going to do with us, the older folks?" He stressed that the young people must be given a responsibility in the Sunday School and church.

The officers of the county organization regret that more ministers throughout the county do not take an interest in young people at these meetings.

First M. E. Church, Xenia, took the banner for the largest delegation at Sunday's meeting. The next meeting will be held at the Presbyterian Church in Yellow Springs, for organization of that unit.

EAGLES WILL GIVE ANNUAL XMAS TREAT

To finance the purchasing of Christmas presents for children of the Greene County Children's Home, Xenia Aerie, No. 1689, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will sponsor a benefit motion picture show at the Orpheum Theater Tuesday evening, December 18.

Tickets are being sold by members of the lodge at twenty-five cents each.

The Aerie annually visits the county institution and distributes holiday cheer to the youngsters. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the fraternity. Proceeds of the show will be used to buy gifts.

REV. JAMES STEELE CLAIMED BY DEATH

Word of the death of the Rev. James Dallas Steele, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Passaic, N. J., which occurred suddenly Saturday, has been received here.

The Rev. Mr. Steele often visited in Greene County and was well known here. Funeral services will be held Tuesday with burial in Philadelphia. Morton Dallas, Yellow Springs, is a cousin of the deceased.

FORMER XENIAN IS ACCIDENT VICTIM

Frank Wike, 40, former Xenian, nephew of Walter Wike, 135 High St., assistant postmaster of Xenia, was killed in an auto accident in Cleveland, O., Saturday according to word received by his uncle Sunday.

Wike was a son of the late Harry Wike. For many years his father was employed as a conductor on the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads.

He is survived by his widow and his mother, Mrs. Mamie Wike, Columbus, O.

The body will be brought to Xenia, arriving here at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning. Funeral services will be conducted at the home of his uncle, 135 High St., at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Interment will be made in Woodland Cemetery.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS ARE AGAIN PLANNED

Plans are being laid for the singing of Christmas Carols in Xenia streets the week preceding Christmas, it was announced Monday.

The carols will be sung on the evening of either December 18 or 19, whichever ever has the more favorable weather. The singers will not receive money for the Social Service League, as heretofore, on account of the Community Chest fund, but any donations of money will be gladly accepted and given to the Community Chest.
